Horse Ria lives on a farm with many other horses. For a long time, there haven't been any children around. Only the oldest horses still remember how it used to be: all cuddly wonderful and curly-happy. That is exactly what Ria longs for. And one day, there's a child at the gate: Toni. But Ria's wish isn't fulfilled right away, because Toni doesn't want a horse as a friend. In fact, she's afraid of these giant-tree-sized horses... Until one day, the two of them unintentionally meet. Will they eventually become friends and will Ria's wish come true?

Reading throughout the seasons

- Four timeless picture book stories in one read-aloud book
- Illustrated in a picturesque watercolor style by Kristina Andres

The little mouse and her friend the squirrel experience the seasons: in spring, she moves into her cozy burrow. In summer, she's filled with the longing for the sea, and mouse and squirrel set off on a journey. In autumn, they gather supplies and catch a cold. And in winter, mouse and squirrel head to the mountains, only to return to their cozy forest right in time for Christmas.

The little fairy Mirabella and the mini-unicorn Pferdl live in the upper and middle drawer of the desk belonging to the old poet Ernst Mondry. When Ernst sits at his desk and composes funny children's poems, Mirabella and Pferdl assist and whisper fantastic ideas into his ear. In return for their help, Mirabella secretly snatches practical items for her furnishings. However, when the mess becomes too much for Ernst and he invites his niece Ella to tidy up and clean, chaos is inevitable. Especially when her son Theo is far too curious and attentive...

Are you ready for the first day of school?

- Colorful and authentic: the perfect gift for all future-first-graders
- Empathetic and humorous story by best-selling author Sarah Welk

Lolle and Linus are six years old, neighbors, best friends - and the day after tomorrow, they are starting first grade. To ease their upcoming fear of the first day of school, they create courage marbles through a series of bravery tests. Linus and Lolle have a lot of fun with the courage tests and eventually hold the ultimate courage marbles in their hands. And then suddenly, the first day of school arrives and everything turns out quite differently from what they had expected...

Vilmar was found by an older couple when he was very young. Yes, you read correctly: he was found! He was not like any other boys. He could feel it, and the other kids could feel it too. One day Vilmar receives a book from old Henrik that tells the story of a folk living underground, who lost their child at the surface of the earth. The little child never found his way back home... Could this be the story of Vilmar?

A book for those who don't like to read

- Interactive book for children who learn how to read
- Funny character leads through the story
- New series by Jens Schumacher for a young readership

New series!

The resolute harvestman lady Karoline lives between the dusty books on the shelves of a library and just wants her peace and quiet. Therefore, she tries by all means to persuade the young reader to put the book down. Because (according to Karoline): reading is BORING, stories are DULL, and letters are ANNOYING! But the more the spider lady argues, the funnier and more absurd her examples become. Maybe books are actually quite entertaining after all?

The most delicious hot chocolate running from the tap, a skeleton from biology class dancing around, mice playing on the teacher's table and a classroom board that will tell you the correct answers to your teacher's questions. You will never be embarrassed in front of the whole class. The perfect school, better than you could have ever imagined! As Elena moved from a fun city to the boring countryside, away from all her friends, she thought this was the end of the world. But when she breaks into a long locked classroom with her fellow student Felix, something unexpected happens. Be careful, enter at your own risk!

The sequel in this magical series: there's a new teacher in town. In his opinion magic is all non-sense and the students just play tricks on him. He decides to organize a school festival to keep them busy. Meryem is happy that she is on the same team as her best friend Simon. Unfortunately, the overachiever Antonia is on their team, too. Soon she complains that Simon is slowing down the team and keeping them from winning the prize. Meryem knows exactly that Simon is indeed talented – that's not a secret to the Enchanted Classroom either.

Are you ready to fall in love?

- Beautiful summer love-story with themes like: coming-of-age, first love, LGBTQ+ and self-discovery
- Unique setting in a vintage second-hand store

Fifteen-year-old Ophelia has the whole summer ahead of her. The only question is what should she do with it? Her friends are away and there's not much to do with her recently separated parents. A summer job at Madam Temperley's vintage clothing store is Ophelia's only glimmer of hope in the empty weeks ahead. But when Rosalie, Madam Temperley's granddaughter, shows up at the small store, everything changes for Ophelia. She had simply wanted to get through this summer - however, she can't forget the look in Rosalie's lime-green eyes.

Step into the city of bridges and waterways

- The start of the breathtaking urban romantic fantasy duology by Mela Nagel
- Light Academia and Slow Burn-Romance meets Venice
- With magical masks, a secret society and forbidden love

New series!

After the death of her father, Anola moves to Venice and must attend a new school there - the Liceo Artistico Palazzo Tutori. What initially seems like a normal school turns out to be a secret academy where students are trained in using magical masks. Thanks to her mask, Anola can suddenly create bridges over the canals of Venice out of thin air, conjure up water tornadoes and create illusions. But how is she supposed to acquire control over the abilities of her mask when her instructor is none other than her detested half-brother? And when her heart doesn't understand that falling in love with her half-brother's best friend isn't a good idea? When the magical protective ring around Venice is attacked, everything is at stake for Anola. Can she save the city of water and light?
