A lovingly designed book that gives all dog fans deeper insights into the soul life of the four-legged friend at their side and also illuminates their own humanity once again in a completely new way. ISBN 978-3-8458-4924-9

Detective Inspector Bea Römer has just returned to her Franconian homeland when a skeletonized corpse is found in the border region between Franconia and Bohemia. The case quickly becomes personal, as the dead man is the father of a former school friend. Bea Römer and her Czech colleague Milan Svoboda investigate together and come across deadly inconsistencies on both sides of the border ...

The old village inn is reopened - by the spirited Fanny Busch, whose family once had to leave the village. Fanny is as indifferent to this as she is to a dark prophecy about their return. She relies on the newcomers and has a plan: a Santa Claus with a golden book and gifts for the children, which he is to deliver festively on Epiphany Eve. On the evening of December 20, everyone is full of anticipation, but Santa Claus does not come - he is dead. A little later, the next villager dies. Fanny falls under suspicion. Only one, whom everyone thinks is the devil, wants to help her. But can she trust him?
