Just ten more minutes, pleaaaaase!

- Lovely story about a little mouse who doesn't want to go to bed yet
- Funny and realistic bedtime story to read aloud
- Beautifully illustrated by Outi Kaden

It's time to sleep - too bad that the little mouse isn't tired at all! And there are also so many things left to do before going to bed: like nibbling ten holes in the cheese, taking nine rides with the racing car around the house and watering the cactus with eight drops of water... Mommy and Daddy Mouse are happy when they finally get to the last request for the evening: just one more bedtime story!

Erhard Dietl, Outi Kaden (Ill.)

When reindeer have a cold

- Story about helping a friend in need
- The perfect Christmas gift
- Lovely illustrations by Sharon Harmer

Santa calls his reindeer together. He cooked a delicious soup for them all, before they set off on their great sleigh ride. Unfortunately, the little reindeer has a cold and can't smell the soup. He cannot find his way to Santa and gets lost in the forest! Will he find the way home in time? How good though that he has friends who come to help!

Daddy Moe is the best cook in the world! At least that's what his sons say. They love Daddy Moe's spaghetti with tomatoe sauce and are always willing to help with the cooking. But before they can get started, they have to go shopping for groceries. How annoying!!! Once that is done the cooking shall begin. Cutting, mixing, stiring, boiling - soon the whole kitchen is a mess! Nev-ermind, one dance break later dinner is finally ready and the pasta is served. Yummy!

Here comes Daddy Moe

The confusly tells the story of Vilmar, a boy who lives on an island at an older couple's house, but who is not like the other boys. Vilmar knows it and the other kids know it, too. One day Vilmar finds a book that tells a story that will forever change him. The story tells of folks living underneath the ground, exchanging their children with human children. When Vilmar then meets old Henrik, he is told a story that's even more exciting - a true story that confirms what's written in the book! A story of a confusly...

Genealogy with a guinea pig

- Heart-warming and cute illustrations by Stefanie Reich
- Family and friends, two important themes in a child's everyday life

Metti is a happy little guinea pig - and not a rabbit, like she used to think! It is not that big of a problem for her, as she lives quite happily at the farm with her friends. Still, she would really like to know who her family is - and as she has heard that guinea pigs often live near the sea, she one day decides to go find them. What a difficult decision, leaving the home she knows and loves to go into the unknown! But as her two best friends decide to join her in this adventure, Metti is ready to confront anything!

Learning about a life on the move

- Incredibly detailed and educating insight in nomad life
- Realistic illustrations by Caroline Reißner

In this beautifully illustrated book, we meet five different nomad children and get to learn more about their lifestyle. Bayarnaa and her family are steppe nomads, Djibrilla lives in the desert, Sulbin and his family are sea gypsies, Raaman lives in the polar tundra and Adeng lives in the rainforest with his folks. Come with us as we visit their homes, learn about their culture and the difficulties nomads face in their daily lives.

The perfect addition to your little Elf at home!

- 24 short stories about the life of the elves
- Advent calendar book: cut-open-pages reveal one story every day

In the weeks before Christmas, little elves secretly move into many houses around the world. They leave traces around the house, write letters to us humans and bring joy to the little ones by gifting them little surprises. An elf in the house makes the advent time so much more enjoyable - and every page in this book makes you fall in love with these little creatures even more.

Join Piet on his adventures in school

- Short chapters: ideal for first-time readers
- Developed by an educationist: author Jutta Degenhardt is a certified special-needs teacher
- The perfect gift for starting school

Piet is finally in school! And he's so glad he has the Wobbly Tooth Gang by his side for this new chapter in life. Together with his friend Polly and dragon girl Prima, Piet is up for everything: puddle jumping, learning the ABCs, and crafting a lantern for the school party. But when a broken umbrella causes a big fight, the Wobbly Tooth Gang dives yet again head-first into their new adventure.

The self-claimed head of the family and first class luxury cat Pommes loves getting his undivided attention. This changes when a cute little hamster named Herr Mimi moves in and steals the spotlight. But Pommes is determined to get rid of him at all cost! Little does he know that a little hamster makes a great friend...

Be careful, this book is haunted!

- Short paragraphs are ideal for first-time readers
- Interactive story with riddles
- Original concept with cool illustrations by Thorsten Berger

Warning - this book is dangerous! It contains ancient occult symbols and magical runes. In the hands of the wrong person it may cause fear and trouble. In the worst case the borders between the human world and the demon realm might open. The consequences would be horrendous!

Don't come too close or else you might get pu...pulled into the demon realm. Great! Too late! Well, hello then. My name is Snuphuluzius XVII and I sure don't want to have you here! Do you have any idea of how embarrassing it would be for me to be seen with a human?! So let's get you out of this book asap!

Join Snuphi on his way through the underworld, to the palace, to school and help him break into Parodontho's laboratory to find out if magic can free YOU this time...

Magical adventures, first love - and a hint of chocolate

New adventures for Mila

Funny story with twists and turns

Mila and Liz are invited back to Paris by the French president himself - and they are staying at the Elysée Palace! Time to explore more of France, learn about Milas powers and spend time with Louis, the son of the French president. But it's not all fun and games. The girls have to take French classes, too. Thank God they meet Julien there who makes time go by so much faster and French seem so much easier. But unfortunately, Julien is not quite what he seems to be...

Managing one's own emotions can be frustrating, especially for children who still need to learn coping mechanisms. This book helps with managing negative emotions such as frustration and anger by giving children an outlet for these emotions. Every page comes with a task: write down what or who makes you angry and then tear out this page, punch the book, poke a hole into the page or scream as loud as you can.

Little monster characters guide you through each page of the book and help you learn new ways of letting go of negative emotions - and feel the relief afterwards.

Just relax!

One day in the life of..

- Non-fiction picture book about diversity
- Ten children introducing their everyday life
- Many colorful illustrations

This book shows similarities and differences in the lives of children. All kind of aspects are covered, from different family situations, social and cultural backgrounds to multi-lingualism and disabilities: we get to know ten children who share their world with us on four pages per child. The album-like style of the book lets the children themselves talk and ensures an individual point of view of their every day life. All of this is us!

Why do bears hibernate in winter? How far can squirrels jump and which is the most dangerous animal in our forests? Children care about animals a lot and they want to know so much about them! This book answers over 100 typical children's questions about animals and their habitats, from mammals, birds, and insects to animals in the forest and in the city. The texts are child-friendly and can be read by young readers on their own, too.
