Mari is a girl who's a lot like you and me. She laughs when she is happy; she cries when she is sad. She dances, plays, sings, goes to schools. She loves reading but also watching TV. All these characteristics make her particularly unique, including having the genetic disease Anglemann-syndrom. Mari tells her story in this book. She might not speak like other people do, but it doesn't keep her from sharing her story with us. Her parents have written down the story for her – and also for everyone else.

Am I different?

- Builds sympathy and understanding in the children.
- Suggestions and ideas to help master everyday life.
- Crafting patterns on the last pages are matching patterns for each story, which the children can use directly.

Supported by beautiful, atmospheric illustrations, this picture book helps children and parents to understand mental stress better and, above all, to respond sensitively to those affected. In this children's book, some important topics such as ADHD, autism and obsessive-compulsive disorder are addressed and explained in an understandable way. This enables children to have more understanding for others or those affected can get incentives to make their everyday life easier.

Get to know your feelings

Perfect access for talking about feelings sensitively

Illustrator Julianna Swaney's artwork supports self-expression and individuality

Lars is confused. He feels angry, ashamed, sad, disappointed, worried all at once! Feelings can come all of a sudden and can be overwhelming. With help of the wise mole, Lars learns to sort out and define his mixed-up emotions. And there are some days where he feels happy, safe, satisfied, brave. And all of these feelings are part of him – it is just perfect the way it is. This affectionate picturebook encourages children to feel their feelings and help them to recognize ever-shifting moods.

Greta is the happiest, bounciest bunny in the whole world. Greta loves hanging out with all bunny friends, do all bunny stuffs, eat bunny food and play bunny games. Until one fine day, a stranger comes to the village and announces that Greta is actually not a rabbit, but a guinea pig. Greta's world is turning upside-down. A heartfelt start of adventures of the most adorable enthusiastic Greta (a bunny, a piggy, or it just doesn't matter). It is absolutely ok to be different and a true bunny friendship is more than white ears and cute tails.

Just be yourself!

- Affectionate story about admiring each other but also appreciating your individual beauty and loving yourself
- From successful picture book author Britta Sabbag with funny illustrations by Igor Lange
- For every fan of "When Two Have a Quarrell...", more fun with Tiger and Lion

The tiger would love to have a mane as majestic as the lion. But the lion would like to be as impressively striped as the tiger. Both find creative ways to change their appearance to look like the other, though in the end they realise that they would rather be themselves. This picture book celebrates the individual magnificent beauty of both animals and encourages self-love.

It's raining and raining and it doesn't seem to stop any time soon. Robert and the little fairy Clockette (who lives in his grandpa's old wristwatch) set out to get help from Robter's big yellow digger, that excavates them a trench that leads the water away from the town.

But that is not enough! Together they make their journey in the direction from which the clouds are coming to find out where all this rain is coming from. They travel through many different and diverse countries and landscapes of this earth to finally reach Nepal. There, in the Himalaya, they discover the cause of the never-ending rain.

In the most warm-hearted way the bestselling team tells the stories of Bobbles, the little Bumblebee. Bobble has the smallest wings a bumblebee could have. Bobble is frustrated, everybody just laughs. But once Bobbles closes the eyes, feeling the strength inside deep down in the heart – at the next moment, when Bobble tries to move the wings, Bobbles starts to fly. Bobble is the perfect companion for everyone who uses to feel small. Bravery, happiness, love and strength – all of these are held inside you. You don't have to go far, you don't have to search long. Every-thing you need is already there, inside of your heart. Perhaps you don't see the path right now, but it has been there for you.

A strange newcomer appeared in the woods. Its appearance worries the inhabitants. It has bright coloured feathers and makes weird noises. Wilma Wild Boar is afraid that it might be dangerous and could hurt her family. Speedy Squirrel is worrying about his nut stocks. The duck, Mrs Chatter, is jealous of its beautiful feathers. Fortunately does Ollie know how to listen properly and has trust in everyone.

It is a beautiful summer's day. The birds are singing, the sun is shining. But suddenly it gets noisy. Where does this racket come from? It is Willy Weasel and Olaf Otter that are causing this disturbance. They bumped into each other at the beaver's lodge but they both don't want to make room for the other one. When Willy Weasel gets upset, he needs to go pee. When Olaf Otter is afraid, he starts shaking. A few moments later the lodge does collapse. But Ollie the Owl is already here to help. His calm mind and proper questions are revealing new perspectives.

Little witch Hella loves being a witch. Because it is really nice whizzing around on her broom Zigzag and spending time with her talking teacup and her one-eyed cat Mr. Rudolfo. But there is one thing she'd like to see: the human world. Not only is that strictly forbidden for witches, it would also be dangerous if it was revealed that Hella is a real witch. When she finds out about Halloween, one thing is certain: This is the opportunity to enter the mysterious human world undetected. The adventure in the human world can begin! Soon Hella meets Lia, who is new in town and faces challenges of her own. The two quickly become allies and Hella decides to stay a little longer in this quirky new world to help Lia. Can they make the world a better place?

Help me, I'm trapped... again!

- Original concept of a demon caught in a book directly addressing the reader
- Interactive with riddles and tasks
- Witty text with cool illustrations by Thorsten Berger

After allegedly releasing Snuphuluzius XVII from his eternal prison, he finds himself trapped once again in another book. Apparently he also went through numerous other books in the progress, like The Big encyclopedia of Pugs and a maths text book from school. Definitely not a pleasant experience. Eventually he ends up in a very thorough history book. But the magic some-how messed with the content of the book... and it has all come to life! Follow Snuphuluzius XVII through the different chapters of history and ensure his survival. A fun interactive story with lots of humour, puzzles and riddles. Will Snuphuluzius XVII be free in the end? Or is there more trouble ahead?

When Helena and her father moved into this boring little town out in the sticks, she could have never known what adventures were awaiting her there. The new school seems just exactly like the town: A boring school in boring forests with boring teachers and boring students that all seem to love the woods, fresh air and nature just a little too much. But soon Helena realises, that there is more to it than just some nature obsession. The students immerse further and further in the secrets of the trees and the plants. The soul of nature has many stories to tell, secrets and mysteries. But not every creature of the forest welcomes humans with kindness. Luckily Helena soon makes friends that have her back as she faces the dangers of the wilderness. Especially since something dark, something even more dangerous lurks in the woods and threatens the safety of the Wild Wood — and also the humans that live on its border.

Spectacular crimes all throughout history!

True Crime for Kids

Child-appropriate retellings from various different perspectives

Dangourous black and white illustrations - not for the faint-hearted!

Spectacular crimes that really happened are retold in an exciting and lively way. Whether it's a bank robbery, art forgery or blackmail, there are always interesting, unusual personalities behind the deeds. The different perspectives like quotes from newspaper articles, reports directly from the scene or even interviews with the criminals themselves give a broad view on the events and immerse the reader immediately in the story. Retold in a child-appropriate way, this book provides insight in spectacular crimes with true suspense.

Discover how animals perceive the world

- Look at the world from different angles!
- With instructions for observations and experiments and their solutions
- Large-format pictures invite to browse and discover

Our senses determine how we perceive the world around us. We see, hear, smell, feel and taste. Most animals have the same senses as humans, but there are big differences in how they perceive the world with them. And quite often animals are even superior to us with their senses. Some animals have developed senses that are completely unknown to human beings, such as the magnetic sense or the electric sense. This book presents the fascinating and unusual sensory worlds of animals with many examples and beautiful illustrations. It also shows us the magic of nature and how every creature finds its own way to adapt the special requirements of their various habitats.

Explore nature throughout the seasons!

- Multitude of activities like interesting experiments, handcraft ideas and fun games
- Monthly explorer's checklist encourages children to study nature and write down their findings
- Facts about seasonal flora and fauna with high-quality photos and colorful illustrations

This handy little guide portrays the environment throughout the year, season by season, to show children the fascinating nature they live in. With many ideas to spend time outside building for example an insect hotel or learn to differentiate between trees and recognize animals by their prints in the snow. Each month starts with an explorer's checklist, asking the children to go on a discovery and look for animal prints, new flowers or listen which birds they can find. Perfect companion book for every little adventurer or nature lover!
